

About BBQads.com

BBQads.com is a venture by Ray Basso the operator and founder of The BBQ Forum. We have been delivering targeted banner advertising for the BBQ world for five years and over one billion banners have been displayed with our servers. We keep redundant backups and strict security practices to protect our data running on MS SQL servers.

We provide robust stats to our clients that can be accessed 24 hours a day and seven days a week. We have the ability of displaying different size banners and to target the banners to different pages on your web page. The statistics we provide allow our customers to view reports that allow you to compare your different banners and show you the number of impressions for each banner as well as the "click on each banner." We have a generous policy that allows you to change your banners from time to time at no charge. Please be sure to ask us about the details of this program
